Key risks of Beam

- Paying contributions on time When paying your or your employer clients' employee superannuation contributions, employer obligations are satisfied when the contribution has been received by the employee's nominated superannuation fund, not by making payment to Beam. You must allow sufficient time for the contribution to be received by the nominated fund. If a contribution is not received by the nominated fund on time, you or your employer clients may be subject to penalties. Visit www.ato.gov.au for more information.
- Correct information Beam uses the information you provide to distribute contributions to superannuation fund(s). You are responsible for ensuring that information you provide is accurate and complete, and that the payment matches the contribution data. Errors, delays and/ or rejections may occur if the information you provide is not accurate or the payment does not match the contribution data. This may affect when the employee contribution is received by the nominated fund and could result in you or your employer clients failing to meet their employer superannuation obligations.
- Unauthorised access Unauthorised persons could access your account unless appropriate precautions are taken. You must ensure your password and username are kept secure and not disclosed to unauthorised persons, and that you do not allow unauthorised persons to access information or effect transactions relating to your account. If you become aware of unauthorised transactions or believe your access details may be compromised, you must contact your payroll provider immediately.
- Interruption of technology There may be periods when Beam is unavailable, for example due to system maintenance and emergency outages. The access of Beam via your payroll software and access to banking platforms also relies on the functionality of third party systems and access to the internet, interruption of any of these services may affect your ability to use Beam and/or delay or prevent payments from being processed by Beam.
- Other risks There are other risks associated with using payroll software that aren't specific to Beam and you should discuss with your payroll software provider about the risks specific to their software. You should also be aware that if you change your payroll software provider, your new payroll software provider may not include functionality for using Beam.

The amount, how often and the date we will debit the account(s) depend on when you instruct us to do so. Since it is self-initiated, we only debit the amount from the account(s) once we receive authorisation from you.

Debiting the nominated account

By signing a Direct Debit Request or by providing us with a valid instruction, you have authorised us to arrange for funds to be debited from the nominated account(s). You should refer to the Direct Debit Request and this agreement for the terms of the arrangement between us and you.

We will only arrange for funds to be debited from the nominated account(s) as authorised in the Direct Debit Request.

We will automatically debit the amount owing from the nominated bank account(s) after you have submitted the contribution in the payroll software.

If you submit the contribution before 3.30pm AEST on a business day, we will debit the contribution amount from the nominated account(s) on that day.

If you submit the contribution on or after 3.30pm AEST on a business day, or on a non-business day, we will debit the contribution amount from the nominated account(s) on the next business day. If you are unsure about which day the account(s) have or will be debited you should ask the financial institution. Delays may occur in the processing of direct debits for reasons outside Precision's reasonable control (for example, delays in processing by the relevant financial institutions).

The debit will display as "Precision CH" and include the payment reference number in the transaction statement.
